Dear members,

Your Hunter Museum has a lot going on this first quarter of 2024! In January we opened an exciting new special exhibition, Networked Nature from the Carl & Marilyn Thoma Foundation. Filling our temporary exhibition space with immersive new media and digital artworks that utilize technologies like artificial intelligence and machine learning, real-time software, custom algorithms and virtual environments, Networked Nature examines how those technologies are restructuring and transforming our lives. To complement the exhibition, we are presenting multiple exhibition-related programs (with something for all ages), one of which will be a unique Art Wise talk on February 15 with interdisciplinary artist Carla Gannis (view her website here). Don't miss this impressive exhibition and the unique public programs we have planned to complement it.

Another major occurrence for the Hunter this quarter is its acquisition of several significant works of art, including a stunning, large-scale work by Kehinde Wiley, international star and the painter of Obama's presidential portrait. In addition to the Wiley artwork, the Hunter has acquired works by other internationally acclaimed artists, including Nigerian American artist Toyin Odutola, Native American artist Rose B. Simpson and African American artist Sanford Biggers. We are thrilled to be adding such important works to the Hunter's permanent collection to be shared with our community and museum visitors.

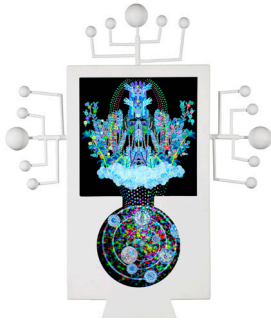

During the month of March, the contemporary wing of the museum will be closed as the curatorial team reworks the galleries in that wing to include all these new works, telling the American story in a fresh, relevant-to-today story. Mark your calendar for March 28 when we will reopen the contemporary wing and host a reception celebrating the acquisition of these significant additions to our collection!

Also in the month of March, we'll be conducting our youth spring break camps. Featuring hands-on artmaking with a variety of mediums and low camper-to-counselor ratios, the Hunter's youth art camps are a great way for a budding art enthusiast to have an immersive arts experience. Registration is now open for spring and summer camp sessions – visit huntermuseum.org to learn more and register your camper today.

Finally, March at the Hunter would not be complete without Hunter Underground. Chaired this year by Katie and Caleb Sanchez and inspired by Networked Nature, Hunter Underground 2024 is themed "Portals of Possibility" and will feature entertainment and décor reflecting the intersection of nature and technology. In addition to the silent auction and the popular "Art Heist Gallery," Hunter Underground 2024 will include dazzling light displays and art installations as well as a contest for the costume that best aligns with the theme of the event! You won't want to miss this edition of Hunter Underground, so get your tickets now before they're gone.

We hope you will enjoy some time at the Hunter this quarter, whether you buy a ticket to Hunter Underground, or you attend a program, an opening, or stroll on your own through the galleries. Enjoy the unlimited museum access your membership provides you and know that your generous support helps the Hunter connect people of every background to creativity, knowledge, and ideas. We thank you for your investment and look forward to seeing you here often!

NETWORKED NATURE

FROM THE CARL & MARILYNN THOMA FOUNDATION

Experts estimate that on average, Americans now spend more than a third of their lives acquiring and processing digital information. The promise of technology remains immense, as artificial intelligence, social media and our digital ecosystems connect us globally. However, this connection to the digital world also poses challenges that, in some cases, we have yet to imagine.

Networked Nature explores these transformational advances in technology through the perspectives of a number of internationally acclaimed artists. Drawing inspiration from our evolving environment, the artists in this exhibition consider our networked nature—how we connect to each other, to the natural world and, ultimately, to our future with technology.

Artists Paul Stephen Benjamin, Kent Monkman and Saya Woolfalk use video to grapple with questions of racial identity, otherness, resilience and belonging. Refik Anadol, Gary Hill and Michal Rovner each have distinctive approaches that examine the interconnectedness of human made systems on the environment. Michael Bell-Smith, Carla Gannis and Hiraki Sawa look to our everyday interactions with games, art history and film to create new virtual realms.

Come experience our electronic, light-filled galleries, and our immersive and hypnotic installations!

EXCITING HAPPENINGS

IN THE CONTEMPORARY WING

Kehinde Wiley (b. 1977), Ferdinand-Louis-Philippe-Charles-Henri, Duc d'Orleans, 2014, oil on canvas. © Kehinde Wiley. Courtesy of the Hunter Museum of American Art.

Remember that striking portrait of President Barak Obama in the Smithsonian National Portrait Gallery? The one where he is seated, surrounded by a lushly dense forest? That stunning work was painted by world-renowned artist Kehinde Wiley. We are excited to announce the Hunter Museum has just acquired its own Kehinde Wiley painting!

In addition to being the first African American to paint an official presidential portrait (in 2018), Wiley has made a global impact with his boldly colorful, intricate paintings of everyday people in majestic settings. He recreates paintings found in art history books with ordinary people as the subjects, thus taking the invisible and anonymous and incorporating them into a history from which they have been absent.

An artist whose works are found in museums and private collections across the world, Wiley is of such renown we, frankly, never thought we would be in a position to acquire his work for Chattanooga audiences. However, thanks to the diligent persistence of staff and the generous support of donors who recognized the importance of his work, the Hunter – and Chattanooga – now owns a significant painting by the widely acclaimed artist!

In March, we are redesigning the Hunter's contemporary wing to showcase this incredible work as well as several additional important works the museum has recently acquired, including a stunning pastel and charcoal portrait by Nigerian American artist Toyin Odutola, a 7.5-foot-tall ceramic sculpture by Native American artist Rose B. Simpson, and a massive installation by African American artist Sanford Biggers. Each of the artists whose work will be featured in the Hunter's contemporary wing redesign interrupts established narratives by provoking discussion about history and perspective. Although each artwork speaks to personal issues, the works exist and speak to a global stage, one that interweaves American happenings with those worldwide.

Please join us on March 28th at 6pm for the opening of the contemporary wing redesign and the unveiling of these incredible additions to the Hunter's permanent collection!

PRESENTED BY  FIRST HORIZON

2023 Spectrum Gala Chairs Nicole and Bo Watson orchestrated a beautiful, successful, Gilded edition of Spectrum, raising significant funds to support the Hunter Museum's work connecting people of all ages and backgrounds to creativity, knowledge, and ideas.

Spectrum 2023 featured a silent art auction cocktail party on Thursday and a seated dinner live auction gala on Saturday. In addition to the glamorous, golden décor of the museum, Spectrum guests enjoyed live musical and dance performances, and even a Goldfinger spoof to get them in a Gilded frame of mind.

Art Selection Committee Chairs Allison and Marc Cromie and their hardworking committee did a great job scouring art galleries in Chattanooga, Chicago, Charleston, Atlanta, and Nashville, selecting a broad range of fabulous art for a wide variety of tastes and pocketbooks. Spectrum attendees celebrated the success of the Silent Auction at an after-party on the 24 Hour Terrace and on Saturday enjoyed dessert and live music in the lobby after being entertained on the River Terrace by the dynamic father-son duo Jim and Dan Kennedy at the fast paced, engaging live auction.

And through the generosity of Spectrum attendees, the museum was able to purchase two significant paintings by local artist Daud Akriev for the museum's permanent collection!

Sincere thanks to the wonderful 2023 Spectrum sponsors, led by Presenting Sponsor First Horizon and Silent Auction Sponsor Modwash, the table hosts, ticket purchasers and bidders for helping make Spectrum 2023 the most golden Spectrum ever!

MARTHA MACKEY

NURTURING ART AND ENRICHING COMMUNITIES

The Hunter is pleased to spotlight Martha Mackey, generous sponsor for the past several years of the museum's Art Wise Distinguished Speakers Series. With Martha's generous sponsorship, the Hunter invites renowned artists and art scholars to Chattanooga to discuss work included in the special exhibitions presented by the museum each year (like the Art Wise scheduled for February 15 with Networked Nature artist Carla Gannis). In addition to presenting educational, engaging talks about their work for museum visitors, several Art Wise guest artists have visited Hamilton County schools, sharing their work and their journey to becoming an artist with students.

A devoted advocate for the arts and the major role they play in education and quality of life enhancement, Martha is involved with and supports numerous arts organizations in the community. Regarding her generous support of the Hunter, Martha states she "supports the Hunter with [her] philanthropic level membership and the Art Wise sponsorship because it is important to contribute to the Hunter, which is so much more than just a museum of art."

A former kindergarten teacher who regularly brought her students from Dalton to the Hunter and the mother of two sons who grew up taking art classes at the Hunter and participating on the youth art board, Martha knows the profound impact art can have on young minds. She is very intentional about her giving to the Hunter, knowing that her financial support makes it possible for the Hunter to provide more arts experiences for more people, especially children, in our community.

Thank you, Martha, for sharing your love of and commitment to the arts. Your investment in the museum plays a huge role in allowing us to connect people of all ages to creativity, knowledge and ideas!

According to Gilded survey results, the special exhibition was very well received, with 96% of respondents stating that they would recommend the show to a friend. Just over 55% of survey responders were first-time museum visitors, so the exhibit brought in new guests while encouraging repeat visitation. The gold leaf captured guests' attention while the conversation about value systems and social justice kept them interested. Here are samples of guest responses from the survey:

"The variety of mediums used was unexpected. I very much enjoyed the wide breadth of artist demographics, enriching the contemplation of each piece; none were mimics of another"

"The focus on diversity was so so meaningful and as a whole it was different from most museum exhibits, definitely one of my top five I've ever seen!"

"A unique perspective on aspects of life and current events enhanced by gilding."

SUPPORT THE HUNTER MUSEUM
WITH AN ARTS PLATE

Did you know arts specialty plates support the Tennessee Arts Commission and local art organizations like the Hunter Museum?

Show your support for the arts by swapping out your old plate for a new one from your local county clerk's office!
